ITEMS OF INTEREST ABOUT TOWN

Japanese Tea Garden at the Guild house this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Grange fair will be open Friday afternoon after three o'clock.

There'll be something doing between halves on Brothers' Field tomorrow afternoon.

Rev. Murray W. Dewart, of Roxbury, will preach in Christ church on next Sunday morning.

The ladies of the West church will meet to sew at Mrs. Edward F. Abbott's on Wednesday.

Go to the door yourself when the bell rings tomorrow morning. It will pay you and you'll pay it.

The sidewalk on the north side of the Town hall is being relaid by Superintendent Milo H. Gould.

There will be a general teachers' meeting in Pumphard Hall on Wednesday, October 28, at 3:15 p.m.

The local Republican marching club went to Salem last evening where it participated in the big parade.

Clean out your attic of old furniture. I buy everything. Browne, the auctioneer, 40 High street. Send postal.

Don't disappoint the cheerful little taggers tomorrow morning. They all want the prize. Help them and the Guild.

At seven o'clock on Sunday evening, Rev. Dean A. Walker will conduct a service in the Abbott school-house.

A new electric time clock has been placed in William C. Crowley's drug store by the Western Union Telephone and Telegraph company.

The tickets for the Andover-Exeter game will go on sale in the Andover bookstore on next Wednesday evening, October 28, at seven o'clock.

The annual meeting of the auxiliary to the American McAll Association will be held at Mrs. John L. Brewster's, 11 Locke street, on Friday, October 30, at 4 p.m.

All persons who are desirous of having their names added to the voting list should do so before 10 o'clock Saturday evening, as at that time the registration closes.

Be sure there's a 25 cent tag tomorrow among the ones you buy. It will admit you to the Town hall in the evening, where there is a good time waiting for every one.

Batters are up for a house to be built for Robert A. Buttrick of Lawrence on the west side of Wolcott avenue. Mr. Buttrick is an employee of E. W. Pitman of this town.

The Town hall is gorgeously decorated for the G. A. R. fair. Through the courtesy of this organization the decorations will remain until the Tag Day festivities are over, Saturday evening.

Grand rally in Town hall tomorrow evening. Phillips orchestra, the fame of whose music is widespread, and the sale of the posters whose beauty rivals the glory of the autumnal tints, will make a fitting close to the stirring scenes of the day.

The tickets for the Free church fair will be ready for distribution to the sellers after Monday and can be secured from George Hussey at the Andover Savings Bank. Children who sell to season or 15 single admission tickets will secure a season ticket free of charge.

At a meeting of the Board of Registrars on Monday evening at the Town house the following names were added to the voting list: Jules A. Duval, Ralph O. Ingram, David D. Loudon, Everett M. Lundgren, William P. Minor, William E. Morrissey, Orval A. Reddig, Henry A. Remley, Harold F. Saunders. On Wednesday evening in Ballardvale the name of John P. Harris was added to the list.

Owing to injuries of some of the members of the Pumphard football team the game with Danvers High, scheduled for this afternoon, has been cancelled. Among those who are more seriously injured are Smith, Anderson and Boland. The latter sustained a split lip in practice one day this week which necessitated taking six stitches. It is expected that the team will be in good shape for the games next week.

Dr. and Mrs. Karl May of Dresden, Germany, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Drescher at their home, 53 Abbot street. Dr. May is a distinguished author, some of his works being in the Lawrence Public Library. Most interesting, to the many readers of Lawrence, are his travel stories, and particularly those of the early days of Indian Life in the West where Dr. May has traveled and lived for a number of years. Dr. and Mrs. May sail for home Tuesday, October 27th.

By special request, the stirring four act war drama, "Won Back" will be presented again on November 13 in the Town hall. Everyone who saw the production on October 9 speaks very highly of the play and the players. There will be several changes throughout the play, especially in the already elaborate fourth act. These changes will bring fourth a quartet that is to sing war songs of the Civil war. There will also be new specialties between the acts. And the dancing will be from eleven o'clock until two. Special cars will leave for Lawrence after the dance.

Dr. John A. Leitch has purchased a new Buick automobile.

Miss Ethel Rigby of Lynn spent several days last week with her friend Miss Ella Barton.

The ladies of the Grange are requested to bring a piece of fancy work for the fancy table.

Wednesday was the 100th anniversary of the birth of Samuel F. Smith, author of "America".

A. G. Labonte opens his class in etiquette and dancing this afternoon in the November Club house at four o'clock.

Miss Carolyn J. Burrill sang last Friday afternoon at the meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent Society at the Free church.

Rev. Morris H. Tusk, Ph.D., of Natick, will preach in the Seminary church next Sunday morning and evening at 5:15.

Miss Rose Beebe, who has been spending two weeks with Mrs. Amy Briggs, has returned to her home in Plainfield, Conn.

A free barge will leave the square at 5:30 and 7:30 for the Grange fair, which comes on next Thursday and Friday, October 29 and 30.

Cushing Goodhue, P. A. '07, Harvard '11, has been re-elected manager of the Sophomore class football team of Harvard.

Several members of the local Grange attended the exemplification of the fourth degree at the Reading Grange on Wednesday evening.

A very interesting lecture was given by Rev. Smith Baker of Lowell to the members and friends of the Men's club at the Free church on Monday evening.

A brush fire in Carmel Woods on Wednesday afternoon was easily extinguished by the fire department, who were called from Box 53 by Keeper David M. Bailey.

While answering an alarm of fire on Monday afternoon a cap was lost from one of the wheels of the hose wagon, and the department is desirous that it be returned at once.

Beginning on last Tuesday the cars on the Haverhill line began running on the hour time daily at 10 minutes past the hour instead of 15 minutes past the hour from the square.

The Phillips Academy football team plays the strong Harvard Freshman team tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock. "Bob" Fisher, of last year's P. A. team, is playing with the Freshmen.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Guild of Christ church will be held in the parish house on Thursday, October 20th, at three o'clock. All women of the parish are cordially invited to be present.

The visitation of the District Deputy Cochichewick lodge, A. F. and A. M. at North Andover tonight will be attended by many local masons. A special car will be run to Andover after the meeting.

The Memorial Hall Library has on the children's side of the reading room, a picture bulletin and a number of books for Halloween. On another bulletin board is a list of books on "Good Citizenship". The books themselves in a little case below, are an interesting collection of essays upon modern political methods and ethics.

The "Hilari Quinke" will hold a dancing party on Friday evening, November sixth which promises to be an enjoyable event. The committee of arrangements includes: John P. Wyllie, Aleck Dudley, George D. Walsh, Walter J. Morrissey and Andrew Collins. The tickets are, gent's 50 cents, lady's 25 cents. A special car will leave for Lawrence after the dance.

Suit Against Town

The suit of Alexander Crockett against the town of Andover came up before the session of superior civil court in Newburyport on Thursday afternoon.

The action is one of tort and the ad damnum is $10,000. The case grows out of an accident that occurred on March 14, 1905, on the highway between Andover proper and Ballardvale, when the plaintiff claims that a defect existed in the roadway and he was thrown from his wagon and sustained a fracture of one leg and a sprain of the other. He claims that he was then in the grocery business and that now he is employed in a mill in Andover. At the time of the accident, groceries in the wagon were spilled about the roadway. He claims that because of the defect in the highway the seat of his wagon slipped from its fastenings and he was pitched headlong into the snow and ice in the roadway. The law firm of Mahoney & Mahoney appears for the plaintiff and the law firms of Coulson & Murphy and Knox & Walsh represent the defendant.

Long Run to Fire

An alarm from box 52 on last Saturday afternoon called the fire department to the home of Stephen Abbott in the Scotland District. On arriving at the scene, it was found that the services of the firemen were unnecessary, as no fire could be discovered. Mr. Abbott said that about one o'clock he was preparing to water his cattle when he discovered that the house was rapidly filling with smoke. He made a hasty investigation but could find no blaze. Becoming alarmed, he telephoned to the fire department and a quick response was made.

It was necessary to bring into service a pair of Thomas Morrissey's horses, as the pair usually used on the engine were in West Parish and did not get to the engine house in time to take any of the apparatus.

Club Organized

About 25 young men of Christ church met in the parish house on Tuesday evening and perfected the organization of the Men's Club.

The following were elected officers: President, Rev. R. LeB. Lynch; vice-president, William Odlin; secretary, Nesbit G. Gleason; treasurer, Dr. Albert E. Hulme; executive committee, Henry G. Tyler, H. Winthrop Pierce, and William Knipe.

The club will meet on the first Thursday of each month.

The fire department was called to extinguish a brush fire in the rear of G. W. W. Dove's residence on Phillips street on Monday afternoon. The fire was a serious one, burning over several acres. After an hour's work by the firemen, assisted by P. A. students, the blaze was extinguished.

"Ho, ho, little boy, have you any tags?" "Yes sir, yes sir, three full bags. Some for the auto, some for the cart, And some for every man who wants to look smart."

HAD QUIT WORK READY TO GIVE UP IN DESPAIR Restored to Health By Vinol

"I was sick, run-down and finally had to give up work. After trying a number of remedies and several physicians, I was just about ready to give up in despair. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it, and it has done more good for me than all other means combined. It has built me up and restored my strength until I now feel twenty years younger, and am able to attend to my work again as usual." Job Jeavons, 1036 Lind Street, Wheeling, W. Va.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it contains tonic iron and all of the strengthening blood-making and body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil. Vinol is unexcelled as a strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, and after sickness—and is the best known remedy for coughs, colds and bronchitis.

We return your money if Vinol fails to give satisfaction.

Vinol is sold in Andover by W. A. Allen.

Forest Service

In discussing the charge made by the Forest Service for power permits and the probable action of the Trans-Mississippi Congress at San Francisco October 6-10, in the matter of the conservation of water power, Gifford Pinchot, the United States Forester, expressed himself as follows in a recent letter:

"Although I shall not be able to be present myself, nor to send a representative, I am deeply interested in the Trans-Mississippi Congress and share your anxiety that the Congress may pursue such a course as will have a positive tendency to promote the active development and utilization of water power.

"The need of water power to conserve the other natural resources of the country, especially the mineral fuels, is thoroughly understood by the Forest Service. Thus the active development of power sites upon the National Forests, for which permits are issued, is always secured by imposing the condition that work shall be begun within definite specified period. The policy of the Forest Service is to encourage water power development in every way consistent with the public interests involved.

"While the charge for power permits should be based, not only upon the services rendered by the Government in administering the Forests and conserving the water flow, but also upon the 'power value' of the land occupied, the charge imposed need not be onerous. You are entirely right in your belief that I do not desire to make the charges burdensome either to the power companies or to the people.

"On the contrary I have made careful inquiry of persons experienced in the practical development of power projects and am convinced that the charges have been fixed so low as to avoid by a wide margin any possibility of retarding power development. As explained in my letter of May 5, the action, or rather lack of action, by the power companies upon the suggestion that they submit to a fair investigation in order to determine the reasonableness of the present rate of charges, clearly indicates that their complaints are groundless.

"The only real grievance which the power companies have is that, under the Act of February 15, 1901, (31 Stat., 790) their permits must of necessity be revocable at the discretion of the Secretary of Agriculture, and with reference to this feature, as you are already aware, I am in favor of such a change in existing law as would authorize the issuance of permits irrevocable, except for breach of conditions, for a fixed term sufficiently long to insure security of investment.

"Grants of valuable franchises and property rights such as were made gratis to the railroads when the natural resources of the country were thought to be inexhaustible can now be seriously considered in connection with the development of water power on the public lands and forests. The value and importance of water power to the country is coming to be more and more thoroughly realized and fear of a water power monopoly, instead of being looked upon as an absurd vagary, has taken a firm place in the thought and consideration of the people.

"I am entirely in accord with the position taken by the President in his message of February 26, where he says:

"While we delay * * * the material wealth and natural resources of the country related to waterways are being steadily absorbed by great monopolies.

"Among these monopolies * * * there is no other which threatens, or has ever threatened, such intolerable interference with the daily life of the people as the consolidation of companies controlling water power. * * * Through lack of foresight we have formed the habit of granting without compensation extremely valuable rights amounting to monopolies on navigable streams and on the public domain. The repurchase at great expense of water rights thus carelessly given away without return has already begun in the East, and before long will be necessary in the West also. No rights involving water power should be granted to any corporations in perpetuity, but only for a length of time sufficient to allow them to conduct their business profitably. A reasonable charge should of course be made for valuable rights and privileges which they obtain from the National Government. * * * A fair share of the increase should be safeguarded for the benefit of the people, from whose labor it springs."

"I thank you most heartily for your letter, and for the interest you are taking in this very important question."

AMONG THE CHURCHES, CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

Caring for the Electric Motor

Of all the power giving engines invention has ever produced the electric motor requires the least attention. It will run under all sorts of discouraging conditions for days and days, and even years, with absolutely no attention beyond an occasional oiling. But, while the electric motor is a very rugged machine, it will, like any other machine, suffer from abuse and neglect.

The life of a steam or gas engine is a matter of a few years but an electric motor will run practically forever if it is well oiled. Motors, even after being the victims of fires, floods, and other disasters, have been cleaned up and set running just as good as before.

By observing the following hints, says one of the General Electric engineers, electric motors will do their work long after their owners are dead.

The electric motor should be kept clean. Keep all dust and superfluous oil wiped off. See that the brushes bear firmly and evenly on the commutator. Occasionally wipe off the commutator with a cloth upon which a few drops of oil have been placed.

If for any reason the commutator gets rough, smooth it down with a piece of fine sandpaper. The commutator, when operating under the best conditions, will assume a gloss of light chocolate color.

See that the oil rings in the bearing revolve freely, and occasionally draw the oil off from the reservoir. Clean it out with gasoline and refill with fresh oil.

After the brushes have once been set for sparkless commutation under normal load they should not be changed.

In starting a motor, move the starting lever of the rheostat forward slowly and steadily. Never try to stop a motor by forcibly moving the rheostat lever backward. Always open the main switch first.

Occasionally feel of the various connections. If one is heated it indicates a loose joint and should be remedied at once.

Womanly Wisdom

Lift up! Give a word of good cheer! Lend a hand and make the world better for your having had a place in it.

Rest your weary bones by having a chair in the kitchen to sit in while doing the work you can do in that way.

If blankets are rather too short sew a piece of stout muslin or Canton flannel to one end for the "tuck in."

You will spoil your nice china washing it in water that is too hot. Have the water fairly warm. Use a bit of soap and you are all right. No cracked china then.

Don't try to do your dusting with a dry cloth. That only sets the particles of dust flying everywhere. Dampen your cloth and rinse it out in clear water, once in a while.

Rice usually looks clean when it comes from the store; but wash it in clear water and you will see that it comes far from being so. Keep on washing till the water is clear, then cook it.

To get rid of ants in the pantry lay some ham rinds on the shelves, or smear a saucer with lard and set it there over night. In the morning these will be found covered with the ants, which may be scalded with boiling water, and the traps set again. In a few days every ant will disappear.

Our old subscribers must know our pet dried beef receipt by heart, but we want the new ones also to learn it: For every twenty pounds of beef, take one pint of salt, one teaspoonful of saltpeter, a quarter of a pound of brown sugar. Divide these ingredients into three equal parts and rub them well into the beef on three successive days. Lay in an earthen of porcelain vessel, and turn each day in the brine it will make. At the end of the week hang it to dry.

Ten to Fifty Dollars Fine for Killing a Wood Duck at any Season

Already our people are beginning to see that the ducks must have better protection. Mr. Abbott H. Thayer, the well-known artist who is now in England, writes asking me to do something for the protection of the wood duck and the partridge. New York, Massachusetts and New Hampshire laws forbid the taking or killing of the wood duck and it is unsafe for any novice in the dusk of morning or evening to shoot at random at any small light-bellied duck, lest it prove to be an immature wood duck, or a dipper. The grebes, dippers or divers are protected by the laws of most states and they are the only small light-bellied waterfowl beside the wood duck that spend the summer with us.

Give the Partridge a Chance

All true Sportsmen should withhold their hands from killing the partridge this season. One man goes out with his dog and follows the birds about, firing blank cartridges at each one. Every bird he shoots at, will learn the fear of man and may escape to breed another year. A very few birds ought to satisfy any real sportsman when birds are not abundant. Such acts of self denial indicate high sportsmanship and will pay in the long run, rewarding the sportsman by an increase in the number of birds in future years.

SEVEN TICKETS
IN THE FIELD

Long List of Presidential Candidates to Choose From

THIRTY-ONE SENATORS GO OUT

Twenty-Eight Commonwealths to Elect Governors or Other State
Officers as Well as Congressmen-- South Dakota to Vote on Repeal of
"One-Year Residence" Act--Presidential Nominees and Mates

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Elections will be held in the various states and in the territories of Arizona and New Mexico Nov. 3. Three states, Oregon, Maine and Vermont, have held their state elections, and have named members of the next congress—the Sixty-first. Arizona and Georgia have named state
officers only and will select congressmen at the coming election. In twenty-eight states governors or other state officers are to be elected; a number of these states will also elect members of the legislature. Six states will choose justices of the supreme court or minor state officers. In seven, congressmen only are to be elected, and in two, congressmen and a legislature only.

The terms of thirty-one United States senators, eighteen Republicans and thirteen Democrats, expire March 3, 1909. The present senate is composed of sixty-one Republicans and thirty-one Democrats.

Members of the national house of representatives are to be elected. The present house is composed of 391 members, 223 Republicans and 168 Democrats. There are two vacancies.

South Carolina, as usual, has only one ticket—the Democratic—for state officers. Louisiana also has but one ticket—the Democratic. In this state,
however, a justice of the supreme court
and a railroad commissioner are the only state officers to be elected.

The Prohibition party has tickets in twenty-one states, the Socialist party
in eleven, the Socialist Labor in six,
and the People's or Populist party in five, including Nebraska, where they have fused with the Democrats.

A number of tickets in the different states is: One, South Carolina and Louisiana; two, Alabama and North Carolina; three, Delaware, Florida,
Montana, New Hampshire, Oklahoma
and North Dakota; four, Colorado,
Idaho, Nevada, Rhode Island, South
Dakota, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin; five, Connecticut, Illinois, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri
and Nebraska; six, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York and Texas; seven, Ohio.

In twenty-three states a total of ninety proposed constitutional amendments, laws, questions, or propositions, will be voted upon. This does not include Michigan, where a revision of the present constitution will be submitted to the voters for adoption or rejection.

The amendments or proposed laws
of several states are of general interest.
In South Dakota the question of repealing the "one-year residence" act,
which was passed by the last legislature
in order to stop rapid divorces, will be submitted to the voters. Formerly, suits for divorce could be brought after
a six months' residence in the state.
Opposition to this short term of residence resulted, and the one year act was passed. The latter has been objected to in certain quarters and petitions finally were secured for the submission of the one year act to a vote of the people at the coming election.

In Illinois the question of the a lake-
to-the-gulf deep waterway will be before the people in the form of a constitutional amendment authorizing the state
to issue bonds of $20,000,000 for the enterprise.

A proposed income tax will be voted in four states, South Dakota, North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Following are the national tickets:
Democratic: William J. Bryan, Nebraska, president; John W. Kern, Indiana, vice president.

Republican: William H. Taft, Ohio,
president; James S. Sherman, New York, vice president.

Prohibition: Eugene V. Chaffin, Illinois, president; Aaron S. Watkins, Ohio, vice president.

Socialist: Eugene V. Debs, Indiana,
president; Benjamin Hanford, New York, vice president.

People's Party: Thomas E. Watson, Georgia, president; Samuel W. Williams, Indiana, vice president.

Independence Party: Thomas L. Hisgen, Massachusetts, president; John Temple Graves, Georgia, vice president.

Socialist Labor: *Martin R. Preston, president; Donald Munro, Virginia, vice president.

*Preston was nominated by the Socialist Labor party. Owing to his inability to make a campaign, he being confined in a jail in Nevada on a charge of murder, August Gilhaus of New York was named as his proxy.

Battle With a Lunatic
Waterbury, Vt., Oct. 20.—G. B.
Evans, a leading business man, was attacked at his home here by a lunatic and severely injured. The man called at the Evans residence in the guise of an agent and struck Evans over the head twice. Evans overpowered the intruder, who was afterwards arrested and taken to jail. The prisoner is said to be a former inmate of the Vermont
state hospital for the insane.

RETURN IN FINE TRIM

Battleships Require Slight Repairs
After World Circling Voyage
New York, Oct. 20.—Through a dull
brown curtain of haze and smoke which overhung the entrance to New York harbor the great white hull of the battleship Alabama crept cautiously into port
and dropped anchor off Tompkinsville,
completing a voyage around the world
in 309 days. More than 35,000 miles of all the seas of all the world lay behind her.

Except in one particular, the Alabama finished her long swing around the great circle as fit for a fight as when she sailed from Hampton Roads on Dec. 16 last, as one of the great fleet
which went forth on a mission of peace
to show the nations of the world that the United States still had a fighting arm at sea. Seven years of steaming has put the boilers of the great ship to a severe test and repairs are necessary. In a few days the Alabama will go to the navy yard at Brooklyn to undergo an overhauling which will again
put her in the best of trim.

Meanwhile her companion, the battleship Maine, which accompanied the Alabama from the Pacific coast on the path-finding voyage around the world,
rests in the harbor of Portsmouth, N. H.,
where she arrived early yesterday, the
two ships having separated at sea.

The Maine is anchored alongside the dock at the Portsmouth navy yard.
These vessels have demonstrated to other world powers that American battleships can make long voyages and remain in good fighting trim.

According to a pamphlet published on board during the voyage, the Maine
steamed an actual distance of 33,292
miles. She burned 22,000 tons of coal,
the handling of which wore out 250
shovels.

The engines made approximately 18-000,000 revolutions, with no serious accident of any sort. All the machinery is in fine shape, except the boilers.

BARELY ESCAPED
AN AWFUL FATE

"Dead" Woman Revived as Coffin
Was About to Be Sealed

Ellis, Kan., Oct. 21.—The timely intervention of a physician who was not satisfied with the appearance of the body prevented the burial alive of Mrs. Thomas Chapman, 60 years old,
who was supposed to have died suddenly of heart disease on Saturday.
The body was prepared for burial, but was not embalmed.

The funeral was to have taken place
at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. A few minutes before the coffin was to have been sealed a physician requested permission to see the body.
After confirming his suspicions that the woman's body was made rigid by suspended animation, the woman was removed from the coffin, placed in bed
and revived. While her heart is weak, it is believed that Mrs. Chapman will recover.

Fat Check For Women Suffragists
Buffalo, Oct. 20.—The problem of financing the work of the National Woman Suffrage association for a time
clogged the smooth-running machinery of their convention. It was finally decided to make an effort to raise at least $5000 by voluntary subscription. The contributions had reached $3500 when a messenger handed President Shaw a letter from Mrs. Catherine B. Lewis of Buffalo, enclosing a check for $10,000.
Mrs. Shaw announced the contents of the letter in a few happy words.

Mulai Hafid's Claim Recognized
Washington, Oct. 20.—Conditionally, all the European nations signatory to the Algeiras convention appear to have consented to the recognition of Mulai Hafid as the Sultan of Morocco,
subject to his carrying out various international obligations provided for by treaties and the Algeiras convention.
This also is the attitude of the United States.

Dishonest Revenue Collector
Havana, Oct. 21.—Miguel de Latorre, collector of internal revenue for the province of Havana, was arrested,
charged with embezzlement of $195,000
of the funds of his department. Delatorre served twenty-five years as treasurer of the fiscal zone of Havana. He has made a partial confession, but refuses to divulge what he did with the money.

Making Our Own Torpedoes
Newport, R. I., Oct. 20.—The manufacture of Whitehead torpedoes was begun at the torpedo station yesterday,
this being the first time they have been made in America. The government will pay a royalty to the British company which has heretofore supplied them.
The plant here at present has a capacity
of fifty torpedoes a year.

Metcalf Blocks Naval Reports
Washington, Oct. 20.—To guard against publication of possible indiscreet utterances of chiefs of bureaus at the navy department during the campaign, Secretary Metcalf has directed that not be contained in any regular annual report of those officers shall be made public until after the election in November.

Body Buried in Leaves
Ashfield, Mass., Oct. 21.—The body
of an unknown man, partially covered by leaves, was found by two men while hunting on the Magee farm. The body was decomposed and near it was an overcoat. No one in this vicinity has been reported missing.

GIVEN A SINCERE WELCOME

Formal Exchange of Courtesies the Moment the Fleet Drops Anchor-- Illuminations, Lantern Parade, Dinners and Grand Ball in Honor of Americans--Sperry Says That Object of Cruise is Peaceful

Yokohama, Oct. 19.—Storm-battered,
but magnificent, the American battleship fleet lies in the harbor, the entire assemblage making a display unprecedented in the history of Yokohama.
Shortly after the ships came to anchor,
the mist which had shut out their coming cleared and a light breeze carried away the smoke from the saluting guns,
revealing from the shore front the lines
of white American ships of war, backed by the gray of the Japanese. Two thousand school children sang the American national anthem, the sound of the singing reaching far over the waters.

The ships show the effect of the tremendous battering by the waves, which is described by old officers as the worst
they have ever encountered. The Kear-sarge, which got separated from the fleet, only picked up the others early Sunday morning and is still undergoing repairs. Rear Admiral Sperry said that he was glad to arrive at Japan, and that he greatly appreciated the evidences of a sincere welcome.

The moment the fleet dropped anchor
the admirals, in formal dress, hastened from the flagships of the various divisions to the flagship of the fleet, the Connecticut, which also was boarded by Japanese subordinate officers who came to arrange details. Shortly afterward the admirals, accompanied by their staffs, proceeded to the flagship Mikasa of the Japanese fleet to pay an official call upon Vice Admiral Ijima.
The Japanese admirals immediately returned the call. After a brief visit the Japanese officers departed and as they went down the side the Japanese flag was broken out at the mainmast and the guns belched forth a salute.

The mayor and governor also called on the admiral and later the reception committee boarded the Connecticut
and bade the admiral and his men welcome in behalf of the entire nation.

At nightfall magnificent illuminations
lit up the entire city. Electric lights and lanterns were swinging everywhere, and at a prominent point a huge design, in which the word "welcome" was spelled with brilliant lights, was surrounded by hundreds of American and Japanese flags. The lantern parade, in which there were many flower floats, made an inspiring spectacle, as thousands upon thousands of the little Japanese in quaint costumes
and bright colors took part.

All of the Japanese warships were outlined in electric lights and each carried an American flag at its mainmast.

Several dinners were given last evening in honor of the American officers.
These were followed by a grand ball
given by Governor Suifu of Kanagawa,
at which 1500 people were present.
During the course of his speech at the dinner Admiral Sperry said that the object of the cruise was the development of the fleet for peaceful purposes. He believed that nothing was ever likely to occur to break the traditional friendship of America and Japan.

AMERICANS KEPT BUSY

Plenty of Entertainment Provided For Them by Japanese

Tokio, Oct. 21.—The third day of the American occupation of Japan brought about every description of entertainment for the officers and men of the Atlantic fleet and the visiting business men from the Pacific coast, from an audience and luncheon with royalty to a baseball game between lines of the fleet and Kelo university.

Luncheons, garden parties, Japanese dinners commencing early, European dinners beginning later, and theatre parties kept the American guests of the Japanese nation busy.

For the present Tokio is the center
of attraction, many officers and about 600 Americans visiting this city daily,
but Yokohama is filled with bluejack-ets, to whom is offered every form of entertainment, while large numbers of others are visiting nearby points of interest by means of special trains.

Up to the present time perfect order has prevailed among the sailors on shore liberty, despite their long tour of sea duty. In every case where there has been a possibility of trouble the Japanese have met the situation with the utmost courtesy, avoiding any friction.

There is no diminution in the popular enthusiasm with which the Americans are received in the streets, and wherever the carriages bearing the American officers appear the streets are lined with cheering masses of Japanese.
It is "banzai" everywhere for the officers and men of the fleet, and the most popular cry among the children of Japan is "Three cheers for America."

The baseball game resulted in a victory for the Japanese team after fifteen innings had been played. The decision of the Japanese umpire was questioned, but good humoredly accepted
by the boys of the fleet.

EVANS IS SENTENCED

Court Martial Found Naval Lieutenant Guilty of Two Offenses
Yokohama, Oct. 19.—Lieutenant Frank T. Evans of the battleship Louisiana, who recently was court martialed on a charge of absenting himself
from his post while officer of the deck,
disrespect to his superior officer and intoxication, has been found guilty of the two former charges. Rear Admiral Sperry received the papers while the battleships were at Manila, and has just announced his verdict.

LIEUTENANT EVANS.

The sentence pronounced provides that Evans shall lose 150 numbers and shall be publicly reprimanded. The commander-in-chief adds that in his opinion the sentence is inadequate, but has approved it in order that Evans
shall not entirely escape punishment.

Lieutenant Evans is a son of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans.

"ASSOCIATION OF ADVENTURERS"

Great Profits and Losses in Morse's Pool in Stocks

New York, Oct. 20.—Operations in what witnesses admitted was a pool in ice stocks were related in the criminal branch of the United States court, where Charles W. Morse, financier, and
A. H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, are being tried on charges of violating national banking laws.

John F. Carroll, vice president of the Fourteenth Street bank, produced several letters written about two years ago,
in which it was shown that Carroll had invested $114,712 in ice stock in December, 1905, the principal of the investment being carried by the bank as a loan, with the stock as collateral. Three days later the transaction closed with a profit to Carroll of $20,707. Carroll said that at that time he was operating with Charles M. Schwab, John W.
Gates, Isaac Guggenheim, Charles Barney and Morse. The latter was manager of what Carroll admitted was a pool.

Presiding Judge Hough asked some questions regarding the pool and characterized its members as "this association of adventurers." Schwab and Gates were other witnesses, and each testified to profits in early transactions
in the ice dealings, but subsequent losses.

From Opulence to Vagrancy

Washington, Oct. 21.—Once the possessor of a goodly fortune and social position, Mrs. Rebecca E. Mitchell, who was found under pitiful circumstances
in an alley in Brightwood, a suburb of Washington, was arraigned in the police court on the charge of vagrancy.
She is the widow of a former business man of this city who failed and left many thousands of dollars in debts, to clear which she promptly devoted her own fortune. The court dismissed the case on a plea that she be permitted to again seek employment, her pride
not permitting her to enter a charity institution.

The Andover Influence

My country, tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing:
Land where my fathers died;
Land of the pilgrim's pride;
From every mountain side
Let freedom ring.

My native country, thee,
Land of the noble free,
Thy name I love;
I love thy rocks and rills,
Thy woods and templed hills;
My heart with rapture thrills
Like that above.

Let music swell the breeze,
And ring from all the trees
Sweet freedom's song;
Let mortal tongues awake;
Let all that breathe partake;
Let rocks their silence break,
—The sound prolong.

Our fathers' God, to thee,
Author of liberty,
To thee we sing;
Long may our land be bright
With freedom's holy light;
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King.

One hundred years ago Wednesday, Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, the composer of the national hymn, "America," was born. The hymn was written while Dr. Smith was a student in Andover Seminary, and while his home was in the old Blunt house on Main street. It is not pleasant to think that this anniversary passed by without any recognition of a public nature on the part of Andover citizens. From the watch tower of the old Park Street Church in Boston a band of cornets halted the business of that section of the city at the noon hour and caused thousands of the people there to listen to the strains of this rare old hymn. In many other places, the newspapers tell us, fitting recognition was made of this anniversary. But the home town from whence had come much of the inspiration that led to these words failed to have a part.

We do little in these busy times along the lines of recognition of great men who have gone, or great deeds that have been accomplished. Andover is rich in all achievements that make the history of the nation. Her theological impress, her educational position, her influence upon men and women throughout the land are continually bearing fruit in ways hardly less striking than in the gift she made of the National Hymn to the nation. We might wisely pause more frequently and burnish anew the markers that tell the world that "America," as well as almost countless other influences for better citizenship and better character, have sprung not alone from the genius of individuals, but often times from the larger influence of the town itself exerted upon individuals who are either permanent or temporary residents of Andover.

Greatest Honor from the Simplest Source

The death of Professor Charles Elliot Norton of Harvard College undoubtedly awakens many different emotions among many different people who had been impressed by his life. The writer never met the gentleman, and never came in contact with any direct personal influence that he has exerted, yet from a two days' stay in the little town of Ashfield, feels almost as if he knew something of the character of the man, and the impression his life had made. No longer ago than last Monday our party drove into this little town, and took our dinner there at the old Ashfield Inn. The first thought on entering the peaceful village was of the man who was then lying critically ill, and wherever one went there was the suggestion of his great power, often times unspoken, but frequently finding expression in the tribute of one after another of the old citizens of the town.

In the village store the oldest citizen, changed but little in appearance from what he was when we first met him six years ago, and yet approaching his ninetieth year milestone, expressed what was apparently very deep feeling over the critical illness of the patron saint of the village. Everywhere this same feeling dominated the little community, and one left the center and rode up over the hills with a new appreciation of what it means to be the recipient of the silent and unspoken homage of his fellowmen, when no other power is apparent than the power contained in the simple individual personality.

There are probably many people who have never thought of Charles Elliot Norton otherwise than as a sort of a cranky, crotchety individual. One needs only to go to Ashfield to get a new impression. It may be the impression of a reputation that he did not court as much as he courted the high rank he attained as scholar and leader of thought, but we are inclined to think that it was an impression no less worthy of his ambition that endeared him in the hearts of the simple country folks of Ashfield, and made him a part of one of the most beautiful towns in all the high hills of Massachusetts.

Editorial Cinders

The friends of John T. Clinton are rejoicing over his success at Yale. He is making good not only as a student and in the active school life, but seems to be a fixture as one of the players on the freshman football team. Congratulations to him on the opening of what promises to be a successful collegiate life.

So the trap is working again. Well, at three dollars a head it is fairly remunerative, but again we query, "Is it stopping over-speeding?"

TEACHING OF RELIGION

Discussion by Educators and Religious Leaders

On last Sunday evening the annual October meeting of the Andover Civic League was held in the Free church with a large attendance. The meeting was opened by Rev. F. A. Wilson, who led in a short devotional service, assisted by the choir which rendered an anthem. Rev. F. R. Shipman, vice-president of the League, presided over the exercises in the absence of the president, Rev. Frederic Palmer. He expressed the regret which Mr. Palmer felt over not being able to be present, but he was sure his heart was with the meeting.

The addresses of the evening were then given, the first speaker, Principal Alfred E. Stearns, taking for his subject, "How shall Religion be taught in our Public Schools?" Superintendent of Schools, Sherburn C. Hutchinson, the second speaker, spoke on "The Teaching of Morals in the Public Schools," and Rev. W. E. Lombard on "What of Religion and Morals must be Taught Outside the Schools?" The addresses in part were as follows:

Address by Principal Stearns

The aim of every school worthy the name must be to train its students mentally, morally, and physically for the larger opportunities and responsibilities of college and the broader life of the world: in a word to lay the foundations of scholarship, character, and the best type of citizenship. No school can shirk this obligation.

What place shall be given to the teaching of religion in such a scheme? That the school will concern itself with the intellectual training of its pupils has always been assumed. In these modern days with the recognition that sound minds require for their greatest efficiency sound bodies, physical training has been reduced to a science and is carefully provided for in every complete curriculum. Nor are there many schools in existence today that would admit that there did not fall upon them some responsibility for the moral training and development of their students. All this, I think, may be safely assumed to be true. But if our schools stop with the intellectual and physical or even moral, they miss one of the greatest opportunities offered them, if indeed they are not actually false to their trust. The cultivation of the religious instincts and motives is as essential for individuals as for nations and no nation or individual can attain the highest stage of efficiency or of happiness if this element is lacking. We need only to turn the pages of history to substantiate this claim.

In our public schools today the formal teaching of religion has been largely eliminated. Many of our educational leaders believe this step to be not only necessary but wise. Perhaps these men are right, especially if we consider the nature of much of this teaching in the past. But in permitting this step to be taken have we not confused the teaching of religion and the teaching of religious doctrine—two very different things. That the latter should go is unquestionably wise. But that it should carry with it the teaching of the solid, world-wide, and enduring truths of religion is in my judgment wrong. To call ours a Christian Nation and yet to be so divided in our ideas of what constitutes Christianity as to be unable to agree upon fundamental truths of religion suitable to be taught to our youth would be sad indeed if true. That there are such fundamental truths capable of general acceptance, I firmly believe, that in some way they should be taught in our schools seems to me equally clear.

But you say this teaching belongs to the home and the church. True indeed, but the modern home is not meeting this responsibility and the church can hardly reach those who have not been taught in the home true fundamental conceptions of religion. Material interests breeding indifference more than avowed hostility to such instruction are more and more eliminating from our American home life the study of the Bible and the teaching of religious truths. The school can and must—in a measure at least—make good this loss. This may sound radical, but after all is it so? The State recognizing that ignorance breeds lawlessness and crime and that it militates against the public advancement and the public good compels its youth to accept instruction in the schools. If we are convinced that the failure to understand religious truths and realities is largely responsible for the increasing lack of reverence for things holy, of respect towards superiors and elders, of deference to parents, traits all too common among us and striking at the very roots of the social welfare—have we not as a people a right to ask that the evil be corrected? That this step must be taken with tact and the greatest care I freely admit. But on a broad and sensible basis I do not see why it cannot be done.

In advocating the teaching of some form of religion in our schools I think I have made it clear that doctrinal teaching cannot be tolerated. But on the other hand the teaching of ethics and morals alone is not sufficient. The religious instinct inborn in every human soul does not receive its proper stimulus and is not satisfied. The religious cravings of the heart must be reckoned with.

What then shall be the nature of our teaching and how shall it be accomplished? Throughout the civilized world today the person of the Christ stands forth clear and distinct as the supreme figure in history, the perfect example, the great ideal towards which every man should strive. Through Him the revelation of God the Father, imperfectly shown us through man and nature is focused and made clear. His great commandment "To love the Lord our God with

Free Church Fair

On Thursday evening and on Friday afternoon and evening, November 5 and 6, the big fair for the benefit of the new Free church will be held in the vestry and those in charge are planning to make this one of the biggest events of the year. Excellent programs have been arranged for both evenings, among those taking part being Mrs. Fred G. Moore and Miss Caroline J. Burt, who will sing. Orchestral music will be enjoyed on both evenings. Among the special features will be the supper which will be served on both evenings, and a shooting gallery in the basement.

Among the tables where good things can be purchased will be the following: domestic, fancy, art, Japanese, Helping Hand, home bakery, candy, flower and children's table.

Season tickets will cost 25 cents, child's season ticket 15 cents, single admission 15 cents. Remember the dates, November 5 and 6.

A Thrilling Rescue

On last Sunday morning Wallace Angus, a well known young man, made a thrilling rescue in the Shaw-shen river when he succeeded in saving the life of a young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Falconer of Abbott Village from drowning. The rescue was made in the presence of a number of frenzied people and that it was successful was due to the cool and collected courage of Mr. Angus.

The child had been playing along the river with a number of other children when in some manner she slipped into the water. Mr. Angus heard the screams and as the child was sinking for the third time he dove beneath the surface. Failing the first time he again went down, this time bringing the lifeless body to the surface. The child was unconscious when rescued and Dr. C. E. Abbott, who happened to be passing, worked for some time before life returned. The child is now reported to be resting comfortably.

Knocked Down by Team

Bernard Kelly, a farm hand employed on the estate of Chairman Harry M. Eames of the Board of Selectmen, met with a serious injury on Elm street about 8.30 last night when he was knocked from his bicycle and run over by a team. The accident occurred at the junction of Elm and Whittier streets, and Kelly, who was going toward the square, claims he was on the right hand side of the road. The team was going in the opposite direction and without any warning the driver turned his horse directly in Kelly's path. It was impossible for him to stop or turn out of the way and he crashed into the horse. He was thrown to the ground and the wheels of the wagon passed over his left arm.

The driver of the outfit immediately whipped up his horse and made good his escape in the darkness. Kelly's cries brought neighbors to his assistance, who carried him to Dr. Torrey's office, where it was found that his left arm had been badly torn, 20 stitches being necessary to close the wound. He was later moved to his home. Although the driver got away in a very short time Kelly says he thinks he could recognize the outfit if he should see it again.

Illustrated Lectures

George N. Cross, the well known lecturer will give a series of three illustrated lectures in the Stone chapel, the first one beginning on Tuesday evening, November 10, entitled, "The Splendors of the Alps." On Monday evening, November 23 his subject will be "The Lion of St. Mark (Venice)," and on Tuesday evening, December 1, "Sixty-four years a Queen."

The price for the series of lectures will be one dollar, single ticket 35 cents. A special price has been made for the benefit of students, the prices being 60 cents for a season ticket, and 25 cents for a single ticket.

Mr. Cross is a well known lecturer and his many friends here will be glad to hear him.

MILITARY FAIR IN TOWN HALL

G. A. R., W. R. O., and S. of V. Entertain Large Audiences—Grand Ball Tonight

The local Town hall presents a very beautiful scene with red, white and blue flags and bunting hung in profusion around the walls, windows and stage. The decorations are for the great fair which is being conducted under the auspices of the Grand Army, Woman's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans.

The decorations are beautiful. Huge American flags are suspended from the ceiling on the rear of the stage and smaller ones are hung in each window about the hall. Over the stage, half hidden by flags and bunting, a large American eagle looms up, its piercing eyes overlooking the whole affair.

The tables where one may spend liberally, if not judiciously, are arranged around the hall in a very artistic manner. These are supervised by members of the three organizations.

As one enters the hall, the first table to be seen is the flower table, which occupies the place of honor in the center of the hall. It is very prettily decorated with ivy and vines, with bunting of the national colors interwoven. Mrs. Frank L. Holt has charge of this table.

Along the front of the hall is the candy table, laden with delicious sweets of every kind and color. It is conducted under the direction of the Woman's Relief Corps and Mrs. Andrew McTernan, Mrs. E. R. Barton and Mrs. Warren L. Johnson are in charge.

On the left, the next table seen is that containing countless dolls. These are of every size and color. There are big "Nannies" and big "Dinahs," some that go to sleep and others that talk. One of the most unique features of this table is the school presented by some of the students of Phillips Academy. This school represents scholars of a private institution who are restricted in various ways. The scholars are at play, but they are not allowed to leave the yard under a heavy penalty. They are even guarded by a squad of soldiers, but one nimble girl mounts a wall by a ladder and meets her lover on the other side. A card placed on the grounds by the principal reads: "Notice, Girls only allowed to look over the Fence, Boys shot at Sight. By the order of the Principal, Laura A. Willard, A.M. In charge of this table are Miss Mae E. Morrill, Mrs. William Faulkner and Miss Ella Holt.

Next comes the grab bag, where for five cents you can get a valuable prize or perhaps something not quite as valuable. Mrs. E. R. Eastman, Mrs. D. L. Lindsay and Mrs. C. S. Buchanan are in charge here.

At the mystery table one is sure to get something good, as a trial will convince. Miss Margaret McTernan, Mrs. Eaton and Mrs. William B. Morse are the committee.

From the room in the southwest corner of the building, ice cream and cake are served by Ira Buxton, assisted by Cutter Foster and John Kibbee.

The cake table is the first at the right and here all kinds of excellent cakes and cookies are found. Mrs. Olive Holt, Mrs. Buxton, and Mrs. Jennie M. Bean have charge.

The domestic table is looked after by Mrs. George Mears, Miss Annie Buchanan and Mrs. Frank Smith. This table is visited by all the ladies. Beside this is the china table, where all sorts of dishes, vases and ornaments can be purchased. Mrs. James Anderson, Mrs. George Pearce and Mrs. Stephen Jackson are in charge.

The fancy table is one that is well patronized by the ladies. Here all kinds of fancy articles, gems of needle work, can be found. Mrs. W. A. Allen, Mrs. Ira Buxton, and Mrs. Helen Riddoch are pleased to show the articles to the purchasers.

The vegetable table is laden with choice products of the farm, including squashes, apples and carrots. This table is under the direction of the G. A. R. and the committee is composed of Commander E. Kendall Jenkins, J. Warren Berry and Moses L. Farnham.

The entertainment on Wednesday night consisted of selections by Pearce's orchestra and a cake-walk by colored artists. The judges were Mr. Jenkins, Mr. Farnham and Mr. Berry, and after a difficult task of picking the winners they decided in favor of George H. Taylor and Miss Bertie May Olmstead of Haverhill. The second prize was awarded to Alfred Whittier of Haverhill and Miss Marie Brown of Boston.

On Thursday night the fair came to a close with the awarding of prizes and the auction of the goods left over.

The entertainment was a good one, given by Wood and his company and consisted of slight-of-hand tricks and a hypnotizing act. All his tricks were highly applauded.

The prizes were announced at the conclusion of the entertainment as follows: Cake, William A. Allen; barrel of flour, Bertie Mears; ton of coal, Fred A. Andrews; sewing table, E. R. Eastman; cord of wood, Ralph A. Bailey; jardiniere stand, Miss Lucia G. Merrill and Mrs. Augustus Remington tied; doll, William Knipe; lamp, Mrs. J. M. Bean.

Wedding

ANGUS—SMART

Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock, Miss Annie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Smart, was united in marriage to John Angus. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride's parents on Main street, by Rev. F. A. Wilson of the Free Congregational church, and was witnessed by the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The bride, who is a very popular young woman, was attended by Miss Alice Bell, and the groom, who is also an Andover boy, a graduate of Princeton, and for several years has been doing special work at the mines in Nevada, was attended by his brother, Wallace Angus.

The young couple, after a short honeymoon, will make their home in Andover for the present.

FRENCH—MILLIGAN

Miss Mary E. Milligan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Milligan of Baillie, New Brunswick, and the Rev. George W. French of Holden, Maine, were married in Baillie on Wednesday, October the seventh. Miss Milligan has been a teacher in the John Dove school for several years, and during her residence in Andover she has endeared herself to a constantly widening circle of friends whose cordial wishes follow her.

Wild Duck Killed by Shot that Never Hit Them

While investigating the decrease of wild fowl, I have learned that a good many wild ducks seem to succumb to disease. Along the St. Lawrence and in some parts of the North-west, unwounded birds are found lying dead in the marshes and washed up along the shores. A peculiar explanation of this condition is suggested by Mr. J. H. Bowles, who writes in the "Auk" of his examination of ducks picked up on the Misqually flats at Puget Sound. He dissected ducks that were found unwounded but emaciated and dying or dead and found their stomachs filled with shot and the lining of the stomach and intestines nearly destroyed apparently by lead poisoning. His theory is that, as tons of shot have been fired at the birds on these flats, the ducks find shot and pick them up, instead of sand or gravel, to grind the food in their stomachs, and as the lead wears away in the digestive process, the birds contract lead poisoning and so die a lingering death. It is unsafe to base a conclusion on a single observation of this sort; but now comes Mr. W. L. McAtee of the United States Biological Survey who says that a similar condition has been noted among the canvasback ducks

WAR DANGER NOT DISPELLED

French Government Is Nervous
Over Situation In Balkans

BULGARIA IS HOLDING BACK

Ferdinand's Advocacy of Peaceful Settlement Rejected by Cabinet, Which Prefers War to Paying Indemnities—A Montenegrin Government Official Detained by Austria
While on Special Mission

Paris, Oct. 21.—The feeling in French government circles is distinctly nervous, both with regard to the situation in the Balkans and the proposed international congress. Official advices from Turkey indicate that the Turkish government is manifesting some impatience because Bulgaria has failed to present any official communication since Turkey received the French assurances made in the name of Emperor Ferdinand, while from Sofia comes the information that the Malinoff cabinet still refuses to accept the advice of Ferdinand, who advocates a peaceful settlement, and insists that it would be preferable to go to war than to pay an indemnity.

Until the Bulgarian ministry yields definitely, it is considered by the officials of the French government that the danger of war has not been dispelled.

Reports current in Paris that Baron Von Biebertstein, the German ambassador at Constantinople, has been counselling war at that city, while not confirmed, caused disquietude, especially as Germany's attitude grows more and more enigmatical. It is not unnatural that such reports should find easy credence here, where the belief is now general that Germany and Austria-Hungary are joining hands in an effort to persuade Turkey to settle the issues with regard to the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the declaration of Bulgaria's independence directly with Austria and Bulgaria respectively, thus avoiding the necessity of an international congress.

Montenegrin Official Seized
Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 21.—General Vukotich, an official of the Montenegrin government, who left Cetinje three days ago for this city on a special mission to the Serbian government, arrived here yesterday after an extraordinary experience at Agram, where he was arrested by Austro-Hungarian officials and detained for several hours.

In an interview the general said: "On my arrival at Agram gendarmes entered my car, dragged me out, and took me to the prefecture of police. I was searched and my purse, papers, in fact, everything I had, was taken from me. My baggage also was completely ransacked. I gave the gendarmes officers my name and explained my status as a special envoy of King Peter. I showed also the passport and safe conduct given me at the Austro-Hungarian legation at Cetinje, but all to no avail.

"Ultimately I was permitted to send a telegram to Baron Von Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian minister of foreign affairs, complaining of the treatment accorded me, which was a violation of international usage. After considerable delay an order arrived from Vienna instructing the police to release me, and this was done.

"I was detained at the police station for seven hours, and as I lost my train connection my journey was delayed altogether for fourteen hours."

This occurrence has aroused again a bitter feeling toward Austria-Hungary on the part of the Servians, and the people are greatly excited. The general is the hero of the moment in Belgrade. A great crowd of students and others gathered in front of his hotel yesterday afternoon, and when the general entered his carriage to drive to the palace the students unharnessed the horses and dragged the vehicle through the streets themselves. In the meanwhile the mob shouted its approval of King Peter and Prince Nicholas and cursed Austria.

Threat to Blow Up Church
Chicago, Oct. 20.—Two "Black Hand" letters threatening to blow up the Moody church here were received by Rev. A. C. Dixon, acting pastor of the church, according to information gained from the police. The letters demanded that $1000 be left in a cigar box on the porch of the church. At the hour set detectives watched for the appearance of suspicious persons, but none appeared.

Two Schooners Meet Disaster
Digby, N. S., Oct. 20.—Navigation has been rendered difficult and dangerous on the bay of Fundy, over which hangs a dense pall of smoke. Schooner George L. Slipp, Hantsport, N. S., for Boston, struck on the rocks and the crew was rescued with great difficulty. The vessel is rapidly breaking up. Schooner Vanity went ashore west of Point Prim light and is waterlogged.

Baby Drowned in Sauerkraut
Adams, Mass., Oct. 20.—While his mother was preparing sauerkraut, Stephen Urbanski, aged 10 months, fell into the small bathtub which contained the mixture of cabbage and water and was drowned. Mrs. Urbanski had left the baby for a few minutes while she went to the garden to cut cabbage.

THE "MORSE ICE POOL"

Evidence That Brokers Handling It
Earned Fat Commissions

New York, Oct. 21.—Evidence was introduced at the joint trial of Charles W. Morse, financier, and Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the defunct National Bank of North America, who are charged with conspiracy and violation of the national banking laws, which made it appear that in the eighteen months between June, 1905, and November, 1907, the "Morse ice pool"—so known in financial circles—bought and sold stock of the American Ice company through fifty-nine brokers and operated 111 accounts, slightly differentiated as to named, and that the pool brokers earned commissions during that period of upwards of $1,000,000.

Out of a maze of intricate figures prepared by National Bank Examiner Moxley, who has devoted considerable time to studying the alleged records of the ice pool, the lawyers for the prosecution succeeded in drawing this information. The transactions of the pool as described by Moxley also showed that thousands upon thousands of shares of ice stock were dealt in each month, but that the selling and buying also, the witness said, was almost entirely done by the pool's own brokers. One hundred shares of stock, the witness said, would be sold to one broker by another, and then sold to another broker, and so on, so that the Stock Exchange records would indicate that American Ice company stock was in great demand. The price would naturally go up.

FLED TO SAFETY WITHOUT PANIC

Young People Groped Way From a Burning Building

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 21.—The remarkable escape of 250 people, mostly girls, attending a reception given by dancing teachers in a hall on the third floor of the Odd Fellows' block on Hanover street, was the feature of a fire that damaged that structure last night to the extent of $60,000.

The fire had started on the ground floor in a cleansing establishment, worked up the rear of the building and had suddenly filled the hall with smoke before it was discovered. Despite the interruption to the dance of the young people there was no panic. Everyone moved quickly, but in an orderly manner, for the elevators and stairways. Before the first of them could leave the building there was an explosion and the lights of the block went out. Even then there was no panic, and down through the smoke-filled, darkened stairways, the young folks fled out to safety.

Two firemen, F. A. Marston and G. H. Hammond, were badly hurt by jumping from the roof of the Odd Fellows' block, just as it was falling beneath them, to the roof of an adjoining building, thirty-five feet below. Their condition, however, is not serious. The Odd Fellows' building was damaged extensively in the rear, and the upper story was badly gutted. It was a five-story brick structure and was remodelled two years ago.

Miss Elkins a Princess
Turin, Oct. 19.—Although no official announcement has been given out with reference to the marriage of the Duke of the Abruzzi and Katherine Elkins, it is asserted that the king has definitely given his consent. As a consequence the duke is preparing to leave for the United States. The newspapers say that Miss Elkins can now be considered as an Italian royal princess, while after her marriage she will have the position and honors due her rank as a member of the royal family.

Richford Fire Not Quenched
Richford, Vt., Oct. 21.—Portions of another body were found yesterday in the ruins of the elevator fire. There are various surmises as to the identity of the victim. The remains were taken to an undertaker's to await further investigation and possible identification. The fire is still burning and the ruins are continually watched by a gang of railroad employees.

NEW ENGLAND BRIEFS

Fire, which is believed to have been of incendiary origin, destroyed seven empty freight cars at Dedham, Mass.

The Hancock county, Me., grand jury returned an indictment for murder against Frank Baldasari, who is charged with shooting his brother, Antonio, at Stonington.

E. H. Gay & Co., stock brokers, Boston, were petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors. The firm consists of Eben H. Gay and Joseph W. Jackson.

While attending a patient, Dr. John J. Laco of Pascoag, R. I., aged 70, dropped dead of heart disease. He had been a member of the Rhode Island general assembly.

By falling into a brush fire he had kindled on his farm at Belmont, Me., William Moody, aged 81, was burned to death.

Henry N. Smith, aged 46, was struck and instantly killed by an electric car at Brookfield, Mass. He leaves a widow and four children.

Dr. T. H. Dearing, for many years professor of surgery and dermatology, died at Braintree, Mass., aged 83 years. He was born at Kittery, Me.

The ability of the new steel wire netting to protect the sides of battleships against torpedoes is said to have been conclusively established by a test given it in Narragansett bay.

ROYAL RAGE.

A Story of Emperor William II. and His Mother.

In a character sketch of Emperor William II. in the American Magazine Octave Mirbeau tells an interesting story of the kaiser's relations with his royal mother. The incident was related by Prince Bismarck one night when he had been drinking too much. "And no one," remarks M. Mirbeau, "was more brutally sincere than Bismarck was under the influence of wine." Here is a part of the story:

"The relations between William and his mother, the Empress Frederick, became at last so bitter that William placed spies about her, even in the bedroom of his invalid father."

"Through one of these spies William learned of the existence of a journal which his father had kept for some years. Frederick had a taste for writing, and the fact that there was coldness between him and his son led William to fear that this secret journal might contain some criticism of his conduct."

"The empress, however, was clever enough to conceal the diary before her husband's death. Eluding the surveillance of her son, she sent the papers to her mother, Queen Victoria, or to her brother, then Prince of Wales, I don't remember which."

"Hardly had his father drawn his last breath when William over the dead body performed his first official act."

"It was to demand of his widowed mother the journal, which he termed a 'memorial.'"

"The empress feigned ignorance. William insisted. He spoke as master, giving his mother the order to obey. She persisted in declaring that she knew nothing of the papers."

"Well," he commanded, purple with wrath, 'you will remain under close arrest until you have obeyed me!'

"Bismarck, arriving at Potsdam hours after this, found the palace surrounded by squadrons of armed cavalry."

"The emperor, whom he found still exalted, told the old chancellor how he had met the disobedience of his mother."

"And she need not expect pity or consideration until she has obeyed me," he declared. 'You understand that, Mr. Chancellor? Until she has obeyed me!'

"The pupil had gone much too far. Bismarck saw at once that the buffoonery continued might mar the whole of William's reign. Later in life, he said, he used to wonder how he kept from laughing in his sovereign's face."

"What he did was to receive William's news with deferential silence and later, when the emperor was calmer, show him that his course was sure to meet with general disapproval. There was a way, he thought, of proceeding much more vigorously and at the same time efficaciously. Why not rather cut down the income of the empress, suspend her appanages?"

"I know her majesty," said the good Bismarck. "She has pride. Forced arrest she can brave out, accepting it as a sort of martyrdom, but the money, sire, the money! Who can resist money?"

"Further, he laid tactful stress upon the probable representations of England. 'Is it really the moment, sire?'

"The kaiser, becoming appeased, listened to Bismarck's counsel. The arrest of the empress was removed. The officers led their cavalry back to quarters, and William turned his attention to the details of his father's obsequies, which he wished to be most fastidious."

The Garrote.

The garrote is a thing that no man of nervous temperament should look at. Once seen it never can be forgotten. Just to think of it months afterward brings up a choking sensation which makes one long to tear away his collar and breathe the free air as deeply as he can. It rests upon a raised platform, an ordinary straight backed chair, with thin iron clasps on the elbows and legs of the chair. These are for the arms and ankles of the condemned criminal. At the top of the back of the chair is a band of iron, one end of which swings out so as to admit of a neck being inserted. This band snaps around in place, and all is ready. A twist of a crank in back and as the band crushes the neck back a pin pierces the medulla oblongata.—New York Sun.

To Cure Hay Fever.

Take one pound of ragweed leaves (with stems, flower and seeds indiscriminately or without them), boil in two quarts of water down to one quart and strain. Divide this one quart into three parts—viz, one pint and two half pints. On the first day take one-twelfth of the one pint every hour—twelve doses. The second day take one-twelfth of one half pint every hour, and on the third day take the same quantity—viz, one-twelfth of one-half pint.—Detroit Free Press.

Fish and Salt.

And the mystery still lingers—why is it necessary to salt a fish caught in the salt ocean? A sea bass caught off Seabright requires just as much salt in the seasoning as a black bass caught in the saltless waters of Lake Erie.—New York Press.

The Widow's Might.

Birthday Party

Saturday afternoon, October 17, Dr. and Mrs. G. B. Elliott, 384 Main street, gave a party in honor of the 8th birthday of their niece, Dorothy Elliott Evans.

Handsome large potted plants of unusual foliage were everywhere about in the beautiful residence, and the dining room presented an unusually beautiful scene with its decorations of scarlet, silver and gold butterflies everywhere. Upon the dining table, midst its streamers of red, draped from the chandelier, were the daintiest of little glass tumblers filled with choice candies, and upon the side of each was a butterfly, and each little guest took home a souvenir of the occasion. Also upon the table were dainty cakes, one with its frosting of little raisin turtles, being especially attractive to the children. Sandwiches, ice cream, fancy cookies and candies were also served, and the birthday cake with its eight red candles was lighted and served by little Miss Dorothy. Many pretty games were played both indoors and upon the lawns, and the marching in and out, around and about, to music was especially enjoyable.

The ladies present who came with the children and assisted in entertaining and serving were: Mrs. G. E. Kurth, Mrs. Sanborn and Mrs. Rose Dawson Barker of Lawrence, Mrs. L. A. Chapin of New York city, Mrs. Levi Taylor of Haverhill, Miss Helen Battles of Andover, the children's teacher, Mrs. Alfred E. Drew of St. Petersburg, Fla., who is Mrs. Elliott's sister and Mrs. Kate Drew Evans, mother of little Dorothy. The children present were Mildred and James Lancaster of Merrimack, cousins of Dorothy's Francis Taylor of Haverhill, William Kurth, Philip Lord, Raymond Sanborn, Marion Barker and Dorothy Barker of Lawrence, and from Andover there were Margaret Collins, Isabel Peters, Mabel Ward, Alexina Harris, Elizabeth Frederickson, Edna Garside, Helen Donald, Ethel Walker, Marion Piper, Dorris Piper, Dorothy Cockhill, Mary Cockhill, Norman Allen, Norman Harris, Alfred Harris, Thomas Garside, and Irving Piper. Little Dorothy had many beautiful presents to remember her happy birthday, and the little guests one and all departed having had a most delightful time and hoping for many happy returns of the day.

Expression of Educators

The National Education Association at its recent meeting gave expression to the following in its declaration of principles:

"There is concededly a grave moral depression in our business and social atmosphere. The revelations of the financial and legislative world for the past two years denote a too general acquiescence in questionable practices and standards. We earnestly recommend to boards of education, principals, and teachers the continuous training of pupils in morals, and in business and professional ethics, to the end that the coming generation of men of affairs may have a well-developed abhorrence of unfair dealing and discrimination. The establishment of the honor system in schools, the ostracism of the dishonest or unfair pupil, and the daily exemplification in the routine life of the school of the advantage of honest and truthful methods, are commended to the especial attention of teachers as a partial means to this end."

"The National Education Association wishes to record its approval of the increasing appreciation among educators of the fact that the building of character is the real aim of the schools and the ultimate reason for the expenditure of millions for their maintenance. There are in the minds of the children and youth of today a tendency toward a disregard for constituted authority, a lack of respect for age and superior wisdom, a weak appreciation of the demands of duty, a disposition to follow pleasure and interest rather than obligation and order. This condition demands the earliest thought and action of our leaders of opinion and places important obligations upon school boards, superintendents and teachers."

7th BOSTON FOOD FAIR

Enters on Fourth Big Week, at Park Square Coliseum

The Boston Retail Grocers' Association, who have run six successful Food Fairs, have never before witnessed such immense attendances daily, as they have experienced during the first three weeks of their 7th and greatest Boston Food Fair which this year they are giving in the centrally located Park Square Coliseum. Never before, either, have they been able to make such a generally attractive exposition in point of architecture, decoration and electric illumination. Thousands upon thousands of patrons have pronounced these features alone worth the price of admission, which, by the way, is only 25 cents, and includes every free attraction which is being presented, including the free vaudeville hall where Onaip holds forth to mystified audiences, at 5 and 8 p.m., the various beautiful exhibition booths where free samples are being handed out by the million, moving picture and vaudeville shows, band concerts, and many other amusements.

Could you play "The Merry Widow" waltz standing on your head? Could you, even if you can play the piano, also stand on your head? Could you combine the two accomplishments? Of course, if you could, Onaip, whose illusion of the piano and player is the chief feature of the vaudeville show at the Boston Food Fair, wouldn't seem very wonderful to you. If you can't, it is something of a stunt. Onaip is billed as "The Hindoo Mystery." Doubtless it is only an accident that if you read his name backward it spells "piano."

When Onaip first appears there's a little dash of mystery thrown in to the proceedings by a mesmerist, who comes out and puts the young man player "under the influence." This mesmerist is none other than Onaip. From the remarkable results which follow his mysterious mutterings and motions we are inclined to think he must have been a pianomover in some previous state of existence. At all events, Onaip has no sooner seated the hypnotized player at the piano than slowly but surely to the strains of the "Merry Widow" or some familiar tune, both piano and player begin to do a little ozone climbing. The piano-stool, however, is evidently a non-conductor, for it refuses to budge an inch. When the piano and player have reached an altitude of eight feet the piano, with the performer still playing, slowly begins to revolve. Onaip will be at the Fair until it closes, October 31st.

Musical people are promised a great treat at the Boston Food Fair, this fourth and next to the last week of its run, for the famous Boston musician and conductor, Emil Mollenhauer, is to lead a band of 70 pieces, the Greater Boston Band, and the programs which are scheduled show a variety to please all tastes in the matter of music.

Mr. Mollenhauer is well and widely known in Boston and out of it, having been for many years conductor of the greatest choral organization in America.

No Fiction.
It was a clerk in a Detroit bookstore of whom a prim matron demanded a book for her son. "No fiction, please," she explained, "but absolute, literal truth, without unnecessary verbiage or absurdly fanciful pictures."
"Well, madam?" The bookseller paused, his eye running over his shelves; then, with a flash of inspiration, he took down a volume. "I should think this might meet your requirements," he said, and he handed her a popular geometry.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 304 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes:

"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.
For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

A Horse Trade.

A prominent English landlord was one day riding across a common adjacent to his preserves when he overtook one of his tenants, who was also mounted. After the usual salutations they rode on in silence for some minutes, when the tenant slightly spurred his horse, a balky animal, whereupon it dropped to its knees.

"What's the matter with your horse?" asked his lordship. The embarrassed tenant remarked by way of explanation that his steed always acted that way when there was game to be found.

A moment later, to the tenant's satisfaction and surprise, a frightened hare jumped out of some bushes near by.

This so impressed the landlord that he at once drove a bargain by which he secured the tenant's barebacked beast in exchange for his own fine mount, perfectly saddled. With much agility the tenant leaped to his new horse, and all went well until they came to a small stream, whereat the landlord's new nag immediately balked. A drive home with the spurs brought it again to its knees.

"Hello! What's up now? There's no game here," said his lordship.

"True, my lord," was the ready reply, "but I forgot to tell you 'ee's as good for fish as 'ee is for game."

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Elmer E. Robinson and Minerva Blanche Robinson, in her right to the Andover Savings Bank, dated March 26th, 1904, and recorded in the North District of Essex Registry of Deeds, Book 210, page 83, will be sold at Public Auction upon the premises described in said mortgage deed and hereinafter described, on MONDAY, THE NINTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, A. D. 1908, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon for breach of the conditions contained in the said mortgage deed, and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, all and singular, the premises described in and conveyed by the said mortgage deed, to wit:

A certain parcel of land, with all the buildings thereon, situated in the West Parish in Andover in the County of Essex and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on the South side of the road leading from Lawrence to Lowell, and bounded and described as follows, to wit:

Beginning at a stake and stones in Haggitts Pond Brook, about four rods distant Southerly from said Road, thence following the course of said brook upwards to land now or formerly of Nathan Bailey, to a wall; thence by said wall North 33 and 3-4 degrees East, twenty-nine rods and two links, to a corner; thence by said Bailey's land as the wall runs, North 52 and 1-2 degrees West, fifty-three rods and two links, to a corner of the wall; thence by the wall South 75 degrees West, nine rods and six links to the first named stake and stones by said brook; thence beginning on the opposite side of said brook and running Northerly to said road; thence South 60 and 1-2 degrees West, eight rods and twenty links, South 58 and 1-2 degrees West, thirty-three rods and nine links to a corner of the wall; by land now or formerly of Timothy Bailey and, and Nathan Shattuck; thence by said wall Southerly to a corner by land now or formerly of said Bailey; thence North 42 degrees East, eighteen rods and twenty-three links, North 72 and 1-4 degrees East, four rods and ten links by land now or formerly of said Bailey, to Haggitts Pond Brook; thence down the course of said brook to said road; containing twelve acres, more or less.

The premises will be sold subject to the unpaid taxes or any other lien thereon. Terms of sale—The purchaser will be required to pay one hundred dollars at the time and place of sale, the balance of the purchase money to be paid within ten days thereafter.

ANDOVER SAVINGS BANK,

Address by Supt. Hutchinson

The need of greater emphasis upon moral training in the public school is recognized by educators. There is a serious moral depression in our business and social life. Moral standards are low. It is not surprising that a portion of the blame for existing conditions is charged upon the school as well as upon the home and the church. The school is responsible in a measure, perhaps more than school officials and teachers realize. It is a fact too that the responsibility is not increasing. Home conditions are not always conducive to moral development. There may be a total lack of moral atmosphere. In some homes the multiplicity of duties or social engagements is the cause of parental neglect of the proper moral training of children. Lack of home duties for children sometimes breeds weakness of character and ignorance of obligation. All of these deficiencies the school has to meet, and the problem is intensified in cities of large foreign population.

A heavy burden then rests upon the schools. How is it meeting the responsibility? I believe that the public schools are doing a great deal in the training of children in civic righteousness. I question whether the American system of education is responsible in large measure because of its neglect for the prevailing low standards of business and social life. I am not so sure but that the present civic awakening is as largely due to the influence of the school as the present low moral standards are due to the neglect of moral training in the public schools.

Nevertheless, it is true that the subject of moral training in the schools requires serious attention. It is true also that it presents a very difficult problem. Under a government that has for one of its vital principles the separation of church and state the question of what shall be taught and how becomes an important and at the same time a delicate matter for consideration. This difficulty is in part, I think, responsible for the present lack of emphasis upon moral instruction in the public schools.

If there were a common religion, the problem would be simple enough. But with the necessity upon us of teaching only those principles which are common to all religions or religious beliefs and at the same time not encroaching upon the principle of religious liberty, it is a problem that taxes the wisest of our educators and statesmen.

Various methods are proposed and give evidence of the widespread interest in the subject and the necessity for its solution.

The secular theory proposes to incorporate in the public school course only those subjects about which we are agreed, viz., those that make for intellectual and physical culture; to leave out all religious principles and teach morality only as a human institution and its influence upon the individual and upon the race.

The separate religious school withdraws the pupil from the public school. It aims to perform the work of the public school and at the same time be free to impart religious instruction.

Another proposition is that the public school be purely secular, and that at stated times the children be segregated for the purpose of moral and religious instruction by their own churches or teachers of their own faith. This to be done either in separate rooms of the school buildings or in the churches themselves.

Still another suggestion is that each state teach in her public schools the system of morality embodied in her own laws together with the fundamental and common religious principles upon which the moral law rests. But none of these plans seem to meet the necessities of the case to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. The secular theory is too cold and formal and the plans that incorporate religious instruction do not meet with general approval. It seems to be definitely established that religion as such shall not be taught in the American public school.

There seems to be no plan or scheme left for us but to make the whole school system contribute to the formation of moral character. The whole curriculum and the administration of the school must be permeated by a high moral tone. The teaching force must be actuated by a high moral purpose. Moral motives must be developed in the child. His daily task must have a moral value. Every thinking act has a moral quality. This is a fundamental fact and it is a truth that must be ineradicably incorporated into the mind and character of the growing child. This fact makes it possible to utilize every activity of the child for the development of moral character. It emphasizes the tremendously important work in which the teacher is engaged and thrusts a responsibility upon her beyond the measure of words.

What are the essential qualifications of the teachers who shall train the child in morals and develop character through the daily school activities?

She must have a highly developed moral character. Her personality must create a moral atmosphere. She must be possessed of a high moral purpose. She must have a constant moral growth herself. Her ideals must be high. She must be cultured. She must be what she wants her pupils to be. She must act as she wishes them to act.

Given such a teacher and the field for moral training is without limit. Every school subject has value as a means for moral development. History is a record of the struggle for the rights of man. Literature is full of high ideals and ethical teachings. In all school processes there is an opportunity to inculcate the virtues of moral character. The moral tone of the school is determined by the means employed to secure these. Offense and punishment afford a rare opportunity in the adjustment of the child. The recitation is a means at hand. The playground activities must be utilized.

If all these opportunities are at hand, why are the results unsatisfactory? Largely because the opportunities are not all used. There is such pressure upon the schools to accomplish the intellectual task; assigned that moral training suffers from neglect. Not but that there is a great moral influence exerted by every conscientious teacher, but that the emphasis is not put in the right place. It is the intellectual development that receives the emphasis, not the development of moral character.

What should be done? Give special attention to the moral qualifications of the teacher, that is to her personality and ability to create a moral atmosphere in the schoolroom; give her such aids as are possible; concentrate attention upon conscience-training and character-building rather than upon the purely intellectual development; and give the teacher time. Then I believe that the real mission of the school will be more nearly accomplished.

Address by Rev. Mr. Lombard

I. First. Anyone can see at a glance that none of the doctrines of opinion can honestly have a place in schools supported by taxation of all the people.

If in the town of Andover some Baptist school teacher should begin to teach that immersion is the only correct mode of baptism, it would be likely to be resented by a good many citizens as a misappropriation of funds. And so of any denomination or sect if they thought to have their own peculiar doctrine a part of the religion instructed in the schools. It is clear then that all religious truth which is the peculiar property of any church must be taught by the church at its own charges and in its own schools.

II. In the second place, it is not so clear when we come to those great religious truths which are held in common, by all the great Christian bodies. Such as the (1) Divinity of Christ, the (2) Authority of the Scriptures, the (3) Atonement through the death of Christ, (4) The Resurrection of the dead and final judgment. At first it would seem that these truths might be taught by common consent. But two difficulties arise, first, a text-book would be needed and all the religious controversies of the centuries would be renewed when the exact language of those text-books came to be decided. Secondly, There are in our midst respectable citizens who do not accept these as fundamental truths. The Jews and Unitarians cannot accept the Divinity of Christ. So we discover that all that is distinctively Christian must be left out of the public schools. Whatever of religion may be taught the Christian religion cannot be made a definite part of the instruction. No more could any other specific religion, Buddhism, Hinduism or any other. These must be left to the churches and homes. And I believe that when this fact has been more fully recognized there will be a revival of interest in the churches. The little red schoolhouse or the big red schoolhouse is not able to give a full rounded preparation for life. Religion is needed and it is best obtained in the churches and Christian homes.

What of morals must be taught outside the schools. Fortunately the great bulk of morals may be and is directly taught in the schools. Without doubt more exalted ideals can be raised, especially in the industrial outlook. Altruism which seeks not to make gain of one's brother but make gain for one's brother instead of one's self.

But one phase of morals seems to be sadly neglected and one can hardly see how the public schools can touch it at present any way. The proper relation of the sexes. This is an important matter and no one will say who knows the conditions that it is being dealt with in a satisfactory manner. Not only the poor and ignorant but the rich and cultured in most things seem to suffer alike from ignorance of the facts and principles which should govern men and women in their physical relations. This is a double question. A physical and a moral question and yet so united that they are necessarily treated together. It will be evident that we must, in the present state of public opinion, teach children the meaning of their own bodies and the right conception of the functions of reproduction at home. It cannot be done in the school. It must be done in the home or it will be done on the street or in the devil's better school of evil experience. It will be at a cost of much shame and sorrow and pain and life.

There are signs of hope. There are many parents who are waking up to their responsibility and as a result many young people who are holding their bodies as a sacred trust for the benefit of the generations which are to come.

There are books to be had which give very valuable assistance to the parents who wish to guide their children safely in these important matters. Thus it is evident that the Christian religion which alone supplies the sufficient motive for the highest morals must be taught in the church and the home. This calls, therefore, for a renewed emphasis in the importance of church and home in our civilization.

FROM AN ANDOVER WINDOW

JOHN UNDERWOOD

A New Landmark

In years past, many an eye has looked on Prospect Hill from afar and not recognized that it was Prospect Hill. But that is changed. The white paling fence of the new reservoir crowns Prospect Hill now, and it is a landmark to all the country round. When I first noticed it, looking across from the West Parish, I rubbed my eyes and said, "What on earth is that?" I don't think yet that it is exactly a thing of beauty, but I'm rather pleased that henceforth I shall know our highest hill when I see it. As for the new reservoir itself, I am more than pleased with it. The water will be turned in by the first of the month, I understand. It is satisfactory to think of the new force of flow which the town system has acquired.

Other Changes in the Scenery

I don't know just what's happening out in the West Parish Cemetery. At present it looks as if they were trying to turn one of the pretty, peaceful spots of the town into a desert of Sahara. But the end is not yet, and the end crowns the work.

Another tall chimney is rising behind Christ Church rectory, and has made its bow to the Smith and Dove chimneys down in the valley, and the Hardy and Cole chimneys along on its own level, and the Abbot Academy chimney up the hill.

The ghosts of long dead professors go moaning around the grave of a Seminary; but I believe that even they relax when they see the boys playing "soccer" football on the west side, and a lot of little chaps, suggestive of the small boyhood in these later years, were butting at the Rugby game on the east side. One could not but feel pride in the noble stretches of playground which Phillips now possesses. Perhaps one ought not to say "possesses," and I know one can't feel real pride in what hasn't been paid for yet; but when the Phillips' officials go out to ask for money wherewith to pay for the new grounds, I wish they might take with them just such a pretty picture as I saw the other day of healthy boyhood playing on broad October fields. The hearts of their graduates could not but rise then in proud loyalty to the beautiful domain of their school.

Moral Education and the Schools

I was an interested listener to the discussion of this subject last Sunday night in the Free Church. For the most part, the speakers confined themselves to the direct and avowed teaching of religion and morals. All three speakers agreed that there ought to be such teaching. They said that our boys and girls ought to have some conscious aid from the school in broadening their standards of life-values. They ought to be shown there distinctly what the claims of the Divine and social order really are.

At the same time, by confining themselves to the matter of formal teaching of morals, the speakers helped their hearers unavoidably to forget how broad and true moral teaching the school is actually giving in other ways. Because it is a school, it teaches industry in spite of itself, so to speak. It teaches obedience. It teaches observance of law. It teaches exactness and punctuality. It teaches habits of co-operation. It increases social sympathy. It introduces the children to a society of their own, having its own orders and codes of morals. Child society impresses its judgments upon its members through praise and blame and ridicule and force. All the while, above the child society is the wider standard of a generous, high-minded woman. To speak of these forces in moral teaching is to speak of the commonplace; and yet they have their place as the substantial basis for that more direct, definite education for which Messrs. Stearns, Hutchinson and Lombard pled last Sunday night.

Fairs and Tags

Have you been yet at the Fair of the Women's Relief Corps? If not, you have still a chance, because it will be going on tonight.

Are you going to allow yourself to be tagged tomorrow. If not, send your name to Miss Anna Abbott, and she will send someone to reason with you.

Play the Game

Boys, whatever you may do, Play the game. Though your triumphs may be few, Rather lose than not be true; Though the rules may worry you, Play the game.

Boys, wherever you may go, Play the game. Let your friends and comrades know That to cheat is base and low; Scorn to strike a coward blow— Play the game.

If you win or if you lose, Play the game. Never mind a scratch or bruise Or a tumble, but refuse Sneaking trick or paltry ruse— Play the game.

So in years of toil and care Play the game. Let your deeds be true and fair, Honest, fearless, straight and square, Never mind a loss, but dare Play the game.

Army of Delighted Visitors

Annual New England Food Fair at Mechanics Building, Boston, Constantly Crowded

What may well be termed a "Delightful Occupation" it is to sit in any of the great halls of the Mechanics Building on Huntington Avenue, Boston, on any day and watch the crowds come, be entertained and depart tired with a day's sight seeing at the annual New England Food fair, but all supremely happy. And vastly improved in mind too, for no one can listen to the exquisite music by the Mexican National band; can study, even briefly, the magnificent exhibit of her resources and the indicators of her progress made by the Mexican government under the special direction of President Porfirio Diaz; and visit the Frank C. Bostock consolidated trained wild animal arena with its hundreds of rare animals and the thrilling and fascinating performances given five times daily by the most daring, most successful animal trainers in the world; can sit in the two moving picture theatres in one of which a vivid representation of Paul Revere's famous ride, faithful pictures of the Harvard-Yale boat race and comic views are given and in the other are shown some of the glories of California, the arrival of the United States fleet of battleships on the Pacific coast, the floral parade and battle of flowers at Santa Barbara with scenes in the Yosemite Valley and on the ostrich farms at Pasadena; listen to the flood of melody poured out upon every side from three orchestras and enjoy many other wonderful sights and sounds, without being hugely entertained and instructed. And all of this vast entertainment is free to all patrons of the fair.

Ninetieth Birthday

Daniel G. Berry quietly observed his 90th birthday at his home, "Hillside Farm" in the Farnham District on Wednesday. Many relatives and neighbors dropped in to extend congratulations to him. Four generations of the Berry family were represented. Many useful and elegant presents were bestowed upon him. Mr. Berry was born in the ancient house hardly on the Middleton line where he has lived his long, upright and honorable life. He is well preserved for one of his years.

He has two sons, J. Warren Berry of Andover and Clifton S. Berry of town. There are three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Refreshments were served during the afternoon.

Kitchen Shower

St. Pauls Parish house was the scene of a very pretty kitchen shower on Tuesday evening in honor of Miss H. Louise Barwell who is shortly to be married. A merry time was enjoyed and a delicious collation was served.

Miss Alice Drew, Miss Mary Frayne and Miss Nellie Murphy had charge of the arrangements and they were assisted by Miss Lucy Houghton, Miss Florence Stone and Miss Sallie Wrigley.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Neighborhood club was held last week at Walnut farm, the home of Mrs. Arthur H. Farnham.

The officers for the coming year were chosen—

President—Miss Hannah F. Carleton.

Vice-president—Mrs. Arthur H. Farnham.

Secretary—Mrs. Walter C. Boyce.

Executive committee—Mrs. B. Holt Farnham, Mrs. S. D. Berry, Miss Mary Towne.

After the business session a pleasant entertainment was given:

Reading, "Great Women of pioneer times," Mrs. Arthur H. Farnham.

Poem, "The Orchard Woodchuck," Mrs. S. D. Berry.

Reading, "The Fourhanded Colquhlands," Miss Mary E. Towne.

In a recent issue of its monthly crop report the State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Renovating Old Orchards," by Prof. F. C. Sears, Professor of Pomology, at the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

A copy of the report will be sent to any one applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Sec. State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those placed on the permanent mailing list.

Prof. Sears says, in commencing the article: "There are undoubtedly thousands of old apple trees in Massachusetts, some in orchards and others scattered about fields, which would pay good returns if they could be thoroughly 'renovated' and thereafter be given proper treatment. On the other hand, there are just as many, and probably far more, which would be more profitable on the woodpile than anywhere else. The first question, then, for one to decide, if he owns such trees or orchards, is 'Will it pay to make the attempt to get them into thrifty condition again?' In the writer's opinion this depends on four questions: 1, the age and vigor of the trees; 2, the stand of trees in the orchard; 3, the varieties; and 4, whether the San Jose scale is in the orchard or the immediate vicinity of it."

After discussing these questions briefly but comprehensively, he proceeds as follows: "Having finally decided that the orchard is worth while, the work of renovating will fall naturally under the following heads: 1, cultivating; 2, pruning; 3, spraying; 4, fertilizing; 5, cover-crops; 6, grafting,—arranged somewhat in the order of their importance, though of course this will vary greatly with different orchards, and though all will be needed to secure the best results."

Prof. Sears goes into a careful discussion of all of these topics, bringing to their consideration a wide experience and much careful study and observation. The article is illustrated with four half tones, showing promising and unpromising types of trees for renovating, with directions as to cutting back and pruning the promising ones.
